THE GRIM REAPER

Stanford Walter Bray was born near Crenola, Vinton County, Ohio, Oct. 28, 1886, and was suddenly called away on June 22, 1908 in the 22nd. year of his age.

At the age of four years he was brought by his parents to Logan, where, as a happy boy, he lived for four years. The family then moved to the farm, five miles west of Logan, where they remained for more than three years. When Walter was about twelve the family returned to Logan where the home has been for these past ten years. On the farm Walter had a delightful time. Attachments were formed in the community that have never been broken.

When he had time to visit the country his mind inclined to the same sacred spot so full of pleasant memories. He had just reached these pleasant grounds on last Monday when, unconscious of pain, he fell into his last long sleep.

Walter did not quite finish the course of study in our public school. So anxious was he to be earning an income that he engaged to work in the Snyder factory. In the three years of his stay in that good factory he learned to operate almost every machine in the building, though spindle carving was his special line.

He then took a position on the railroad, but at the request of his mother he turned to other kinds of employment. His last position was as painter at the Athens State Hospital. His work will now be finished by other hands.

Walter's natural efficiency secured employment for him in many directions. His kindly, fair-minded treatment of everybody secured friends wherever he went. His true-heartedness was evidenced by his tender treatment of his afflicted brother.

His attachment to his home and parents were evidenced more and more in every letter when absent from home.

Walter always recognized his mother's love and anxiety for him. He was very careful of her feelings. He knew that quietness could not reign in the home until he was in at night, whenever he was expected to come home. He never failed to step to his mother's door and announce that he was in and to say good-night. Every member of the family would consent that Walter was a favorite in the home, and all who knew him will readily concede that he was a special favorite among his young friends, and at this point the most tender words fail to express our thoughts or our feelings. When we record the words missed, cherished memories and loving friendships they fall far short of what is in our minds, and no stronger words are given. Our hearts speak in sweeter tones than our voice can utter, and we hope to ever live in the sweet consciousness of the love and friendship here manifested.

It might seem wrong to intimate that one member of the family could be a favorite. While one child cannot occupy the place of affection held by another, yet the parents are not responsible that one child can be more fully taken into their confidence and by the strength of his manhood make a place for himself that no one else can fill.

In the home of Jacob, many centuries ago, there was a favorite son, whose absence caused untold grief to the father.

I am glad I knew the best part of Walter's nature. He had religious inclinations. There was a sacred note in his soul that kept him from the gross vices into which many young men fall.

When less than twelve years old, living on the farm he was converted in the home church. Six years ago he was much interested in the meetings in this church. Four months ago he was frequently in the special services being held here, and was much influenced by the meetings. He had a reverent regard for the best life.

I have been with him in the home, at his work and on the street, and always found him the same kind-hearted companion and friend. I can realize how much he will be missed in the home. A great-hearted boy, trusted, and true to every interest of the family.

We pray that his memory may be a lasting blessing in the home and town, and that the friends may be fully comforted by the sweet recollections of his pleasant life.

REV. T. B. WHITE.

Mrs. Andrew Rauber, nee Hengst, was born Feb. 27th, 1884, in Dollar, kingdom of Prussia, Germany. At the age of two years she came to this country with her parents who settled at Lancaster, O. In due time they moved to Ewing, Ohio, where the deceased grew into womanhood. She was baptized and confirmed in the Evangelical Lutheran church, whose teaching was ever dear to her. Seldom did she neglect the house of worship, remaining firm and faithful unto the end.

In 1884 she was married to Mr. Andrew Rauber. God blessed this union with two daughters and two sons. In 1882 they moved into the neighborhood of Logan where their labor was blessed, living to a ripe old age. When the dread disease befell her, she bore it cheerfully, always comparing her trouble with that of others who suffered more. About three weeks ago she was compelled to take her bed, always suffering and never murmuring, but looked to Him who calleth His loved ones home where there is no more pain. In faith she departed this world last Sunday morning between one and two o'clock at the age of 74 years and four months.

An aged husband, two daughters, five grandchildren, along with other relatives and friends remain to mourn their loss.

The funeral services were held Tuesday morning, at the Evangelical Lutheran church, Rev. E. G. Spoehr officiating. Interment was made in Oak Grove cemetery.
